

Hindustan Times

Thursday, March 25, 2021

'Pragmatism to Students Can Be Ingrained Through Moral Values'

The scenario of Education is swirling at an accelerating pace in contemporary times as compared to past. The education of students has also taken a setback due to online classes. It has made students less focused, less attentive and lesser receptor of learning. No longer have the golden virtues remained embedded in students. The need of hour is to educate students more on practicing principles and moral values of life. They should be taught how to overcome anxieties and be in pace with changing times by changing their attitudes and perceptions. Holding of webinars and workshops on positivity and regularity will regulate the minds. Psychologists who deal in child psychology can be a great torch bearer to bring light of happiness as well as positive attitude among children. Pragmatism to students can be ingrained through moral values so that they may believe and trust in themselves rather than being impatient and judgemental.

Scan the code for all the latest updates

Rooma Pathak,
Principal, M.M. Public
School, Pitampura